As described above, the traditional epidemiologic triad model holds that infectious diseases result from the interaction of agent, host, and environment. These answers are not intended to create significant new guidance or require any changes to previously accepted labeling. The Agency will contact registrants directly about how to correct problematic labels as appropriate. Viruses are very small organisms; most can't even be seen with an ordinary microscope. They are made up of a small number of genes in the form of DNA or RNA surrounded by a protein coating.
