The "classic" Tikkun has a substantially larger page, and the two texts (with and without vowels and cantillation marks) are in narrower columns, side-by-side on the page. All notes and indications of Book, Parsha and Aliyah are in Hebrew. I love the Koren font, but I find it more helpful when the unvocalized text looks more like the script found in a Sefer Torah, but that's just a personal preference. This is the most compact and portable Tikkun I've ever owned.
