“Unbecoming is the story of a heist, and especially what happens afterwards. No one thinks beyond the maps and the timetables and the moment of sale, its narrator tells us, but Rebecca Scherm has done just that, showing us the tense, suspenseful aftermath of an unraveled plan. “The Unbecoming,” by Rebecca Scherm, is a case in point. The marketing blurb suggests this novel “is a breathtaking debut with echoes of Alfred Hitchcock and Patricia Highsmith” and continues by saying that it is “sure to entrance fans of Gillian Flynn, Marisha Pessl, and Donna Tartt.” That’s obscenely extravagant praise! If it were true, it could propel a book toward the ...“Unbecoming is the story of a heist, and especially what happens afterwards. No one thinks beyond the maps and the timetables and the moment of sale, its narrator tells us, but Rebecca Scherm has done just that, showing us the tense, suspenseful aftermath of an unraveled plan.”Unbecoming”is an intricately plotted and psychologically nuanced heist novel that turns on suspense and slippery identity. With echoes of Alfred Hitchcock and Patricia Highsmith, Rebecca Scherm s mesmerizing debut is sure to entrance fans of Gillian Flynn, Marisha Pessl, and DonnaTartt.”
